Event to help Paylocity clients learn, expand and ignite their HR and payroll knowledge

SCHAUMBURG, Ill., Aug. 27, 2020 /PRNewswire/ -- Paylocity (NASDAQ: PCTY), a leading provider of cloud-based HR and payroll software solutions, today announces programming details and speakers to be shared at its 12th annual Elevate Conference. Taking place virtually Sept. 16-17, Elevate will deliver the same value as previous years by enabling clients to expand their knowledge and skills around Paylocity solutions, explore the most recent payroll and HR trends with industry leaders and connect with like-minded peers to share best practices.

"Though we're not able to gather in-person, we know HR professionals still need education, training and recertification to be ready for what comes next as HCM and payroll professionals," said Steve Beauchamp, CEO of Paylocity. "We're excited that this year's Elevate Conference will still enable clients to achieve these goals through the virtual event we've developed. Attendees will come out of the event feeling re-energized to bring new ideas and solutions back to their organizations."

In the new virtual environment, attendees have more flexibility than ever for attending sessions. Elevate will offer on-demand access to conference content for one month after the live event. During general sessions, attendees can expect to hear from Paylocity leaders on the state of the business, what's on the product roadmap horizon and how the platform can help overcome HCM challenges and maximize opportunities. In breakout sessions, attendees will hear from impactful external and internal speakers as they explore topics like compliance, pay equity, paid sick leave and more. Elevate also offers professional development and recertification credits via organizations like SHRM.

Offering attendees the opportunity to learn, expand and ignite their knowledge, Elevate features a robust agenda of over 30 speakers from Paylocity and other industry leaders, including:
